

Bug: If the user is on the profile page, logging out still shows the page

Steps to reproduce:

1. Navigate to <https://buggy.justtestit.org>
2. Log in
3. Click "Profile" button
4. Click "Logout" button

Severity: High

Impact: High

Expected result: /profile page should not be shown since the user who originally accessed the page has already logged out. This is a potential security risk

Actual: After the user logs out, the /profile page is shown to the next user with all the details still intact

Credentials Used:

Username: ThisIsATester

Password: Password!00

Screenshot:

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the address bar displaying buggy.justtestit.org/profile. The page header is "Buggy Rating" with a navigation bar containing the username "ThisIsATester", a masked password field, and "Login" and "Register" buttons. The main content area features the title "Buggy Cars Rating" and a line drawing of a sports car. Below this, the profile details are organized into three columns: "Basic", "Additional Info", and "Additional Info". The "Basic" column contains fields for "Login" (ThisIsATester), "First Name" (This), and "Last Name" (Tester). The "Additional Info" columns contain fields for "Gender", "Age", "Address" (IFCqXDsxXI), "Phone", "Hobby", "Current Password", "New Password", "Confirm Password", and "Language" (English). A yellow highlight is drawn around the entire profile content area, including the "Basic" and "Additional Info" sections.
